Your sincerity is only skin deep. It is a costume you
wear beautifully.

Time is running out, but the finish line is nowhere in sight.

Deadlines come and go,

Your sincerity is only skin deep. It is a costume you
wear beautifully

And all I have for show and tell is a wrinkled flag of surrender;

Served especially for you on a silver platter of failure.

Like every coward,

I am relieved to have an easy way out.

Your sincerity is only skin deep. It is a costume you
wear beautifully

To seduce the weak at heart. Regretfully, the only trait
you own is vanity.

Tattered dreams lie on the floor along with what remains of my gown.

This fairy tale was a nightmare in disguise.

And I can't wake up; your lies haunt me.

(Too many, too greedily, hold onto it.

The little lifeboat is quickly sent down.

Too many, too greedily, hold onto it.

The little lifeboat is quickly sent down.

Too many, too greedily, hold onto it.)

The little lifeboat is quickly sent down.

Too many, too greedily, hold onto it.

Your sincerity is only skin deep. It is a costume you
wear beautifully

To seduce the weak at heart. Regretfully, the only trait
you own is vanity.

Tattered dreams lie on the floor along with what
remains of my gown.

This fairy tale was a nightmare in disguise.

And I can't wake up; your lies haunt me.
