You are the one I need,
You are my oxygen.
Why do I choose not to breath when I know I must breath again?
Fill my lungs.

As I look into the horizon that seperates Heaven and Hell.
I realize that I must accept self defeat.

This too will pass, but your words remain the same.
Bring me another glimpse of blood shot eyes and knees collapsing.
I will never forget.
These self inflicting wounds.
I will never!

Fill my cup to overflowing
Show yourself through me
This is a declaration of hope and prosperity.

You are the one, my oxygen.
I chose not to breath when I know I must breath again.
Fill my lungs to never ceasing.
Give me words of hope and meaning.
