God desires to be born In the flame of human sense Bursting and rising Higher and higher

And what if there are no roots on earth And what if the stoned residence Is a ruined hotel Where the flame of God cannot burn And what if the human sense Appears as a son without birth On an unequal battle Where the stoned walls are made of human flesh

God desires to reign In the flame of human fear Creating and burning The fields of humans' fear

...prepare your soul for the eternal burn... ...and what if the human sense is a son without birth...
