Tonight I'm screaming those words that I wanna regret

How truly honest can one man be to only drop those subtle hints

But I was never that kind of person I always put it on the table

Laid all my cards out smiling with a stupid fucking grin.

Never faced the fucking problem of not being trusted

Because I never let a single story go untold,

Feel free to judge me for what I have done it's the reason I put it out.

I never wanted that colorful tapestry behind me

To go unnoticed allowing all to see how truly ugly I was or I can be

But I can't take back a single action I made

No I can't change the man I watched die

But you have heard all my stories

You made the right choice

You will never Get fucking burned
