(Crowe)

You know she's gone and left me
Packed her bags and hit the trail
I'd like to get angry, but I see her point of view
If I was her, I would have left long before now
I want babies
I don't provide the safety she needs
To build her nest
She's just not impressed

There's a list up on the wall
That dates two years ago
I really wish I could have taken it down
When I needed it to go
I hope I won't be punished
For this list of works is incomplete
I'm destined to be attracted to those I cannot defeat
I don't provide the safety she needs
To build her nest
She's just not impressed.

I can feel this jealousy burning in me
I look at you and wish it away

My friends have got babies
So I thought I should too
So I'm scrolling through the window
Looking for that womb with an ova view
I panic when I see myself
I am not half the man my daddy was
In his life, one wife, two very troubled kids
And 57 jobs
I want babies
Just not right now
I want babies
Just not right now
Just not right now
No, just not right now
I can feel this jealousy burning in me
I look at you and wish it away
