The last call for life - alone in this city
I feel like dying - the night makes it feel pretty
I'd like to fly away and leave her behind
She said that it's me who's pushing the limits
My words break her up once again every minute
But this is not the end, the end we can't find

'Cause she doesn't know a thing called happiness
She don't know what it is
And she is everywhere
When it's time to push me down
And she doesn't show the pain
And the loneliness that's growing inside
'Cause weakness makes her want to drown

She's trying to break me
At least that's what I'm thinking
I can't stand no more
That's why I keep drinking
Burning up myself to fade the past
But when I am gone she says that she's missing
Her bites make me bleed
Although she says that she's kissing
For her I am the one and she wants it to last

'Cause she doesn't know...

The last call for life - alone in this city
I feel like dying - the night makes it feel pretty
I cannot fly away and leave her behind

'Cause she doesn't know...
