"Blue Clouds"

Babe's got blue clouds overhead that stretch for all she can see the green fields she's lying in are a little less than what she needs

Bobby's got miles of road and yellow lines that stretch on for days he lays back his chair to recline he'll finally get away

they know it's a sin to hold it all within open their arms and they'd feel the blue clouds disappear

Babe walks along a lonely sidewalk it helps her ease the pain the voices inside her want to talk but they just remind her of him again

Bobby puts the pedal to the floor and drives He drives hard in the rain he's a fool for wanting more his voices speak shame

if we didn't have the rain the sun might dry up everything save us the pain but let us see love remain
