You Could've Heard A Heartbreak
(written by Tim Johnson / Brett Jones)

Tall and lean, sexy Dorene parted them swinging doors
She was holding hands with some honky tonk man, no one had ever seen before She was Bubba Jones's girl, his whole world Never knew a man as mean or as strong There was bound to be trouble when she burst Bubba's bubble
And he found out she was doing him wrong Then right about ten Bubba walked in, the crowd did a double take
You could've heard a heartbreak

(Chorus)

You could've heard a pin drop, even the jukebox stopped
No clinking glass, no belly laughs, no whispers, no small talk
Just silence all around and that little cracking sound That only one thing makes, you could've heard a heartbreak
We thought for sure when he saw her there was gonna be hell to pay I said hurry someone dial 911, get an ambulance on its way Then he dropped to his knees, said, "Come back please. I'm sorry that I treated you bad." Like a small earthquake he began to shake, never seen a sight so sad She said, "I've had enough. I've fallen in love. Boy it's just to late."
You could've heard a heartbreak

(Repeat chorus twice)

That only one thing makes, you could've heard a
heartbreak
You could've heard a heartbreak
