you were a small town girl in the city making plans for something new met a boy who thought you were pretty but he didn't know what to do and all the talking don't mean nothing when he's walking out on you

'cause words mean nothing if they ain't true and now I got me some talking that's just for you for every single time that words couldn't make you happy
and if I had somebody I'd put 'em on the line for every word or dollar bill that I could call mine always and forever and never all the time he was a lost little boy in the city tried to own what you can't buy and he stayed up late smoking whole packs of cigarettes

'cause he couldn't sleep alone at night and all that money ain't worth nothing when it's running out on you

'cause time ain't money and money ain't time

I wish I had me a nickel or had me a dime for every single time that money couldn't make you
and if I had somebody I'd put 'em on the line
for every word or dollar bill that I could call mine
always and forever and never all the time so, save your time and stop your running lend your words to me sell your heartache and trade the money for a someone who could make you happy all the time

'cause you don't need a dollar when talk is cheap and you can never ever change what you'll always be someone who could never be able to make you happy and if I had somebody I'd put 'em on the line
for every word or dollar bill that I could call mine

always and forever and never all the time
always and forever and never all the time
