You're telling me it's really strange The way that I'm so sure about it all You're giving me that funny smile As if you think I've really lost it all

But don't you know just what I've done I've crossed the seven seas for you And can't you see from town to town I've roamed the streets just to find you

You're telling me I'm rushing in To your life without knocking on the door You're giving me that funny smile As if you think I've really lost it all

But don't you know just what I've done I've crossed the seven seas for you And can't you see from town to town I've roamed the streets just to find you

But don't you know just what I've done I've crossed the seven seas for you I've had to search from east to west North to south just to find you
