A barren scene, no counter veil, everything stands still.
Intensity, a pre-empted tale, where silence the air does fill.

What do you believe 'Millennium' It's time to see.

It was a mark that seemed so far away. So bitterness turned sweet.

But where to be the next vanish point. A target we've yet to reach.

Celebrating and loosing faith-in, do messangers call?
Togheter tasting, like full on wasting. Today we rise, tomorrow we fall.

I see rain and snow. Temperatures fall to a record below.

I see tables rise, as continents crumbling, severing sides. War and pain.

A greed that's followed by whoever insane. Lightening strikes. A terror inside.
