Thank you for walking
Thank you for spending one day,
with a stranger

Good morning. Hello! Choose a color, carnation we'll walk along.

Down round the pond, up the hill bricks and steeples it's not all gone... I recall

Thank you for walking
Thank you for spending one day,
with a stranger

Thank you for talking and showing the way to a stranger

Wining and dining (what a September) from bags by the river (I should've worn a sweater) a sun, sail, song (it's cooler up here)

We sat on a wall (oh my) rest our feet (just a little longer) touch our noses

Then slow poke on... oh, I recall

One red carnation
the color for April and apples
and wine

I suppose it was white... but I needed the rhyme.

As I packed up to leave oh, I noticed the fountain, the statue's hand.

There in her bronzed, moistened, palm red carnation
Without you there... I recall
