I am a victim of my time
A product of my age
There was no choosing my direction

And so I walk, to try to get away
Knowing that someday, I'll finally have to face
The fear that will come, from knowing that
The one thing I had left was you
And now you're gone...

You are a victim of my cries
A product of my rage
You are a beautiful distraction
See, I got you locked away outside
And let misery provide
And now, I am changed

And so I walk, to try and find some space
Where I can be alone, to live with my mistakes
And the fear that will come, from knowing that
The one thing I had left was you
And now you're gone...
Hey ey ey ey

Is there nothing at all)
That I can do to turn your heart
(Is there nothing to lean on?)
That can help me raise the stars
And I can use a little strength before I fall
Is there nothing at all?

I am a victim of my time
A product of my age
You alone are my obsession
You are the one I left behind
You are heavy on my mind
It's been a lonely road I've traveled
And so I walk
To try and get away
Knowing that someday
I'll finally have to face
The fear that will come

From knowing that the one thing I had left, was you
And now you're gone

(Is there nothing at all?)
That I can do to turn your heart
(Is there nothing to lean on?)
That can help me raise the stars
And I can use a little strength before I fall
Is there nothing at all?

*guitar solo*

(Is there nothing at all?)
That I can do to turn your heart
(Is there nothing to lean on?)
That can help me raise the stars
And I could use a little strength before I fall
Is there nothing at all?
