With every eye staring at white walls,
To think that I could have ended up like them.
I still can't see where this is going,
I lost sight of the lighthouse as I drowned in the ocean.
To my surprise I wasn't dead,
But I saw my life flash before my eyes,
And watching these days go by, I realized
That I am no one yet.
Watching, waiting, show me the signs,
Show me the light that will guide me through the trees.
I'll be fine, but I don't want to be left behind.
You can save my life, if you take everything and leave
me to die
In my house of cards, when every move I make could cave in.
I've been lost in this ballroom, dancing steps and
denying the divine,
And I can show you the backslide, from the weight of the calendar months gone by.
I'll be fine, but I don't want to be left behind.
You can save my life, if you take everything and leave
me to die.
Leave me to die, or just fall asleep,
Know that I won't be taking you home.
