It's starting...

In their caverns all the monkeys, lived like every day was first one they had seen eating, laughing, mating, sleeping innocent and carefree life was but a dream

Paradise was theirs, they knew it neverending summer days spent playing games Tales of cold no one believed, things have always been like this and there's no change

Winter, someone whispers Winter, no one listens

It's coming...

Not too bright but maybe happy they had learned that they know all there is to know wish there had been less apathy when the winds all turned cold and the winter came

Winter, should have seen it Winter, could have stopped it

And I'm screaming as I'm weeping feel like trying to wake the dead hopeless prayer for a hopeless dream had our chance now it's too late

It's ending...

sun's gone down

it's time for goodbyes the monkey land has finally died and we all fade away with no more than a sigh to meet the white cold storm outside
