Give me something I can hold on to All my time I spend with you not anyone else Give me something I can relate to Maybe then you'll see this way is easier than being myself
There is nothing I can say to chase all your fears away
There is nothing I can do, it doesn't make much sense to you
There is nothing I can say to chase all your fears away

My hands are all tied you don't ask why The things that I say to you just keep running back to me
All the things that you say are so repetitive But I can't keep telling you none of this talk means a thing to me

"If there is something on your mind why don't you just say?"
She asks me all the time but I turn the other way If there was something on my mind you'd be the last to hear today
There is something but I won't say

I know all that I can be; it's always made such sense to me
When everything I say or do all comes running back to you I'd close my eyes and then I'd say that you could be my inspiration

But then the next time that I'd see you, questioning your information Breaking your heart I'd ignore you, it's not hard to Lemme tell you I'm built that way so everyone get out of my way
"Can't you see?" and I knew you would

My hands are all tied and you don't ask why
The things that I say to you just keep running back to me
All the things that you say are so repetitive and open ended

This makes no sense

There is nothing I can be, so why'd you take advise from me
That is just insanity
There is nothing I can tell you, "So just get away from me"
The only lasting thing to say
"I guess my expectations changed"
