

Scar Culture "Reform Reason"

Visit "Reform Reason" on MotoLyrics.com

And I should never dream again...
Still I will never hide.
These crossed hearts that bear my name satisfy my Thirst for strength, and failure- sickness that's hides
the
Way to bleed and leave peace behind you.

Now drown out the screams inside.
Replace them with reason.
For reason is the drug that hides and kills your drive to Breathe, believe and reach for dreams that light the way
To free yourself from binds of inward hate.

And I dream of hands that cover me.
Safe inside dried eyes that feel my breath surviving wars
That you fought.
And no one could ever help you stand for your dreams.

I feel silence, stare through me with executional eyes
That relive every shortcoming of the flesh.
Stare at my life while I relive the child that brought me
Here to try my fear.

I feel silence, stare through me with executional eyes
That relive every shortcoming of the flesh.
You live for times to qualify my anger.
Dry your eyes and reach for self-absorption.
Peel myself off broken concrete,
Despise the taste of my sour blood as I roll my eyes up to the sky.

Grieve for the ones you've lost.
Grieve for the ones you've never seen.
And I grieve alone for souls unknown to me.

And I dream of hands that cover me.

Visit Scar Culture page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

