And time stood still july was prettier than anything and though we lived beyond the end of the world with motorways and wasteland all around at least it was ours

Yeah time stood still and every morning was the same old thrill will I see you again will you speak or let them devils do that for you? just let me wrap my tongue around this taste the picture you gave never goes away

And you gave your life to meaningless things and all that you dream about but never will see and here you once laid on your back in the yellow sunburnt swaying grass

Yeah time stands still ten years passes just like that should I come up with some conclusion over what has happened well somewhere in america they still put poison in their foreheads for fifteen more minutes of fame so it hasn't changed it hasn't changed
it's still the same
still the same

And you give your life to meaningless things
and here you once laid on your back
in the yellow sunburnt swaying grass
