you were born with a hole in your chest now you put your heart before your head one mark for every day
one mark for every day
nothing can surprise you, nothing at all you'll walk under ladders or challenge the sea sit on the roof tops if it makes you feel free one hole for everyone one hole for everyone you ever knew you know they worship the one, make themselves numb put themselves above whatever level you're on there's a tyrant in all and everyone

once you said it felt like fire burning in your head you wet yourself time and again 'cause you were so afraid of it the biggest bird you've ever seen swept down in your dreams night after night, there's no way out from that moment you always knew that you were born with a hole in your heart now you are where you were right from the start now you sleep under the cold blooded stars something sad for everyone something sour to swallow something fun to talk about just another story to tell the laughing crowd
