Rainbows in Gasoline golden and green chemical sun setting like a hundred million chameleon clouds we are the dinosaurs now wearing freudian slips like evening gowns taking guilt trips from town to town dressed for excess wearing cheaper suits walking around in another mans shoes why do we give memories eyes and teeth like taxidermy dreams bury them in gardens under the weeds let the willows weep

what will you do when the moon comes tumbling down
