David Crosby

David Crosby: Vocal, Electric Guitar

Jeff Pevar: Lead Electric Guitar

James 'Hutch' Hutchinson: Bass

Michael Finnigan: Keyboards

Jody Cortez: Drums

Instrumental (Electric Guitars)

I used to walk around with my eyes on fire

My nerves real close to my skin

Had a fist full of questions and a brand on my cheek

And we would skate where the ice got thin

And the smoke blowin' down from a cabin on a hilltop

Smoke blowin' down in the street

Some kind of sweet smellin' mystical backdrop

To the story unfolding at my feet

There's an edge to the twist of an acrobat in the air

There's an edge to the twist of a knife

There's a hard heart of darkness hovering there

Just around the corner from life

And I, I have no answers

I got no patented path to set you free

Besides I wouldn't know where you wanted to go

And it's probably not the same place as me

Instrumental (Electric Guitar)

There's a thousand roads up this mountain

You can get lost in a minute if you try

And it's probably enough that I was just laughing today,

yeah

Lookin' this close in your eye

I said there was a thousand roads up this mountain

You can get lost in a minute if you try

It's probably enough that I was just laughing today,

yeah

Looking this close in your eye, in your eye

In your eye

Instrumental Ending (Electric Guitars)
