We sat under the sky staring for hours
The light that hid the night was almost devoured
We wanted to reach out to the stars and make them ours
Maybe hold them in our hands and feel the power
Of their light

Something tells me that there's more to life in this land
More than the things I can see and the stars I can hold
in my hands

As the mountains surround your city
Surround my heart
Give me something sweeter, sweeter than this life
I want something more than what's in front of my eyes
Give me something sweeter

I reach my hands to the sky to see what I can find Unfold life's mystery, conspiracy divine
If you want to know the truth I can't do this on my own
Maybe I've been lied to this is not my home after all

Something tells me that there's more to life in this land
More than the things I can see and the stars I can hold
in my hands

As the mountains surround your city
Surround my heart
Give me something sweeter, sweeter than this life
I want something more than what's in front of my eyes
Give me something sweeter
