if i fell asleep miles above my home would they turn to stone expecting would they crumble distance and days gone by an open sky revealing rhythm of a train through the south of france melancholy dance of statues j'mapelle resistance, but you my love will rise above translation if i ever find a window i'm gonna fly over this if i ever get a pillow
i'm gonna lay down
with every journey comes an end summer's almost over again like the fading voice of phone calls baby in a bottle has truth to speak "the past will keep us together" yeah there's a cure that is painless wrapped up clean in a silver dream floats off away on a tv screen but it's hard to explain it alone
i'm gonna lay down
