Too tired to sleep and my mind is just racing so And you're far from here, least a thousand miles - maybe more
Not much has happened since I last laid eyes on your face

So when you comin' home - you know that you're my saving grace
Saving grace

The bed goes unmade and the flowers have grayed in our yard
And I'd have never believed that me livin' here without you would be so hard

A two room apartment just feels like a wide open space

So when you comin' home - you know that you're my
saving grace
Saving grace
Saving grace

It feels like the dawn never comes, the night lasts
forever
So when you comin' home, you know only you make it better

I can't think anymore, got my eye on the door all the time
And our friends are starting to wonder if you've started a new life
You know I'm an astronaut floating suspended in space

So when you comin' home - you know that you're my
saving grace
Saving grace
Saving grace

It feels like the dawn never comes, the night lasts
forever

So when you comin' home, you know only you make it
better
Now the streets are all empty, I'm the last soul alive who's not sleepin'
I don't want to miss you, I know that you're gonna come creepin'
