Everybody always knew she belonged to him
Since kindergarten they were the best of friends
Their parents called it puppy love, puppies know the deal
Jamie and Jenny it was real

First day with glasses on Jen didn't go to school
Jamie showed up at her door grinnin' like a fool
In his daddy's whole rims she laughed until she cried
He said let them call us both four eyes

Jamie said, "God made your mother so you'll always have a friend
You sister and brother to fight with now and then
God made your father to show you what a man should be
And he knew you'd need someone to always love you
And that's why God made me"

First day of high school they drifted apart
And they both experienced their first broken hearts
Jenny met a new boy, made a bad mistake
She hasn't seen him since that day

Waitin' for her mom and dad to get home from work
She didn't know what best friend called Jamie first
But he showed up at her door said, "I know things look bad
Why don't we tell them I'm the dad

Jamie said, "God made your mother so you'll always have a friend
You sister and brother to fight with now and then
God made your father to show you what a man should be
And he knew you'd need someone to always love you
And that's why God made me"

In five years they've added to their family
And the one who don't look much like Jamie
Last night at bed time he said "where did I come from?
I don't look like the babies, I don't look like you and mom"

And Jamie said, "God made your mother so you'll always have a friend
You sister and brother to fight with now and then
God made your father and that's who I'll never be
But he knew you'd need someone to always love you
And that's why God made me"
