Of our forsaken time I want to scream my hatred to the world of the now empty shells of the unmerciful they break, they take, and rape the innocent My hatred burns, for their power is the epitome of our worlds downfall
We the people will rise and fall to end our torment and their preying of the weak
their preying of the weak,
We must remind them of our hatred and of their humanity

[Chorus]

Burn the world, destroy the fodder
We shall not give in
The hatred burns the world to ashes
As the children sing the forsaken lullaby
As they carry on we weep to the passes
But carry on, we will win this war
In the house of the corrupted our blood will not be spilled

Revived of our new foundation we once heard the forsaken lullaby, the song for the hopeless we drive on As they are the contradiction to their society as the scars of battle afflict the moral we may fall but with our final breath we call the forsaken lullaby

[Chorus]

Burn the world, destroy the fodder
We shall not give in
The hatred burns the world to ashes
As the children sing the forsaken lullaby
As they carry on we weep to the passes
But carry on, we will win this war
In the house of the corrupted our blood will not be

One more day we carry on with regret with the final words of the ashes of the forsaken carry to corruption as their smiles everlasting we see the cancelled compassion of their ignorance

Our screams have been heard and dealt the corrupted now fear the one word they thought as an inevitability
We screamed in their ears. Memento Mori
We screamed in their ears. Memento Mori
We showed all of their fears. Memento Mori
We showed all of their fears. Memento Mori
