Missing From Our Shores

There are still some missing from our shores,
Can we find a way to bring them back home again?
Back behind dusty doors, I found it in an old bookstore.
A book that then attracted me, inside a unique history,
It said it was about the war, the one I'd heard about before.
Far away across the sea, open my pages and you'll see.

Cho: There are still some missing from our shores,
Can we find a way to bring them back home again,
There are still some missing from our homes,
Can we find a way to bring them back home again?

Although I've waited several years,
To see pictures of courage and of tears.
Friends of mine tales they've told,
Our earth's history now unfolds.

Cho: There are still some missing from our shores,
Can we find a way to bring them back home again,
There are still some missing from our homes,
Can we find a way to bring them back home again?
