I've heard the words you said in mind over a thousand times

And still can't make it make sense after all of the lines that i bought, that i heard.

As i hung on every word and now i can still remember what you said.

And you said that you're never going to leave, but you're wrong.

How do you expect me to forget that you're gone? That you're gone.

With each day that passes by i can hear your voice
And how you so sweetly said i was the only one that you'd need, that you want.

And now suddenly i'm lost as i watch my world crumble right before my eyes.
