I'm tired of all the jagged edges
That cut me every time you fall
And the pieces of your life
Come down around you

I'm tired of all the worried voices
Crying when they call
Just 'cause I'll know where to look
When no one's found you

You're just sailing right along
That's what you're thinking
I've been bailing you out so long
You don't even know you're sinking

I'm guilty
Guilty either way

Wrong to try to fix you
And wrong to turn away
So I'm guilty
Guilty either way

I don't want to be the one
To get that call some early morning
When they find you dead
Or more than you can take

I don't want to be the one
To dry your children's tears of mourning
And try to find some lie
To cover your mistake

If I'm always here to catch you
Then you're only going to fall again
But if you fall right through the bottom
Then I'm always going to feel the blame

So I'm guilty
Guilty either way

Wrong to try to fix you

Wrong to turn away
So I'm guilty
Guilty either way

I'm guilty
Guilty either way
Guilty
Guilty either way

Either way
