If you let it get too quiet
There's a whisper in your bones
You can feel it more than hear it
But there's something close when you're alone

You turn up all the distractions
But the whisper still gets through
And you don't know what it's asking
Don't know what this calls for you to do

You don't have to hear, it's only a sound
It's only your soul that's crying now
You don't have to feel what it's about
It's only your soul that's crying out
It's only your soul that's crying out

You hear it growing stronger
And it wakes you from your dreams
But you don't fear it any longer
'Cause at last you've heard just what it means

Now you can see, look what you've found
It's only your soul crying out
You don't have to fear what it's about
It's only your soul crying out

You don't have to fear, it's only a sound
It's only your soul crying out
You don't have to fear what it's about
It's only your soul that's crying out
It's only your soul

When you let yourself get quiet
There's a whisper in your bones
You can feel it more than hear it
But there's something close when you're alone

You don't have to hear, it's only a sound
It's only your soul that's crying now
You don't have to feel what it's about
It's only your soul crying out

You don't have to fear, it's only a sound
It's only your soul that's crying out
You don't have to fear what it's about
It's only your soul that's crying out
It's only your soul that's crying out
It's only your soul, only your soul
