When I'm afraid of dying
Ashamed of never doing what I'm here for
I'm afraid of being afraid
And wasting precious time

I'm afraid of growing so cold
And closing off the love inside me
I'm afraid of just getting old
And never getting wise

Here tonight
A storm of another kind
Where's the light I have known
I have known
The lightening strikes
Born of another time
Across these years You have shown
By Your words alone
By Your words alone
By Your words alone

I don't even know how it starts
Too much fretting and forgetting
But something switches off in my heart
And leaves me to my mind

So I'm reaching for your words in the dark
To bring you here to shine your Wisdom
And all it takes is one sudden spark
To leave this fear behind me

Here tonight
A storm of another kind
Where's the light I have known
I have known
The lightening strikes
Born of another time
Across these years You have shown
By Your words alone
By Your words alone
By Your words alone

You blaze this sacred trail I find

Here tonight

A storm of another kind

I have known

The lightening strikes

Born of another time

Across these years you have shown

By your words alone
