I see stars awaken to the moonlight into the hasn't happend yet sky blooms deviding down the sunlight a love that sometimes i forget

let me be your cigarette i am bones of an old angel creek and long feathered fingers wet with grieve and head like a smile
the white baby teeth need no need for eyes when we are everything

ahh let me be your cigarette your alive but sometimes i forget

like a virgin on the tongue of powerful man
as the dogs soars upstream and it swallow the sunset
