i see stars awaken to the moonlight into the hasn't happened yet the sky blooms dividing down the sunlight alive but sometimes i forget let me be your cigarette
I hear bones of an old angel creaking Long feathered fingers wet with grieving Heaven is spinal white baby teeth We've no need for eyes when we are everything
Let me be your cigarette
You're alive but sometimes I forget
Let me be your cigarette
Like a virgin on the tongue of baphomet
Let me be your cigarette
As the dogs rise up screaming and swallow the sunset
Let me be your cigarette

Let me be your cigarette
You're alive but sometimes I forget
Let me be your cigarette
