(Mistro if you please)

I sit around and watch myself grow old
I never had a clue about where it would go
They never told us about how much it would hurt

To destroy the world that we're livin' in To think that for so long we've been committing such a sin
They never told us about how much it would hurt

And we just run away
One day we'll have to pay
We're sitting here all around the world and back
We never bothered to take care of our own home man
They never told us about how much it would hurt
