"That Time Of The Year"

Another year has come and gone again
Look around and think where have you been
Trace the lines on your face tonight
And don't forget that this will pass in time

It's cold out this morning
You should be getting into bed
Can't believe it's that time of year again

Curled up tight
A darker shade of white
Thinking back could be here for a while

Its cold out this morning
And it's getting harder to pretend
Can't believe it's that time of year again

Can you believe the life you led?
Did you achieve the goals you set?
Did you lose your mind?
Well and then

Is there a reason you own them?
It is a season that won't end
Can't believe it that time of year again

Another year has come and gone again
Look around and wonder what happened
