She's over satisfied with the limit of this skyline
And I'm, I'm over satisfied with being here.
She sits on the edge of her seat and asks me
Outrageous things about who I was and what I wanted to be.
She must have, she must have read my mind
'cause I've been waiting for this.
Now I've just, now I've just blown my mind.
But I feel fine. I feel fine.

She wears a sparkle on her left cheek
When she lifts her lips and shows her teeth.
I'm wondering why a girl like her
Is sitting here with me.
And ever since last Saturday,
I've been thinking about what to say.
And all I can do is hope for the best.
She must have, she must have read my mind
'cause I've been waiting for this.
Now I've just, now I've just blown my mind.
But I feel fine. I feel fine.

Sitting all alone this time
And spend an hour by the phone.
I wish you'd call to save me.
She knows my name,
And I've forgotten what to say.
She knows my name.
She knows my name,
And I've forgotten what to say.
She knows my name.
Now take this, and put it in your hand,
Well turn around, and don't forget again.
Well now take this, well now take this....

She must have, she must have read my mind
Lcause I've been waiting for this.
Now I've just, now I've just blown my mind.
But I feel fine. I feel fine.
