

Sirens

"Travellers Of The Stellar Ocean"

Visit "Travellers Of The Stellar Ocean" on MotoLyrics.com

Swaying in the cosmic winds, enraptured by arcane visions of endless stargates swathed by the origin of all.

A thousand dimensions spreading from the ancestral void, hearken as I howl unto the splendid night this call:

"Sirius, (come to me) mighty sothis of the ancients. Let thy fires be strengthened by the ones inside my skin. Rekindle flames of crative magick fettered beyond my (veil of) humanity and torch the myriad galaxies that lurk so deep therein"

Shalt ever our voices sing in unison 'twixt bewildered stars, to see secrets of all space and time before our eyes unfold?

Shalt my hands touch a new beggining, rising beyond it's end, and soar throughout the multiverse 'pon aethereal wings within my soul? Galaxies...they are but dust in our hands. A mighty dragon I behold, whose bosom spawned forth time, rolled upon his fiery tongue, his immortal tail does stand.

Close thine eye, oh source of power and watch everything die.

Visit Sirens page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.