Sunk so deep, you won't believe I can't proceed with this over me
I know what you think when you say my name Talk about me like, oh he changed Now the dope is up his nose and i don't know if i can trust him
And the smell of alcohol is too much for me to go hug him
And it's hard to take, hard to watch, hard to look away

But it's worse to be, in the middle of the shit trying to make up why to stay So i underestimate people Lie to myself, but I'm easy to see trough Use to be so proud, but take a look at these eyes, take a look at me now

Everybody got a problem with me
But then again, no one said life's easy Now i gotta watch where i put my feet
Some don't even wanna look at me Every now and then i think back If i took another choice, where I'd be at Moma said I'm proud of you And my dad wanna help me, guide me trough

And i DO wanna change but i keep coming back to the same old same snort a line, while i write a rhyme about quitting shit for a better life what the fuck is that, where's the discipline This tend to bring out the bitch in me
And did i make this song for the sympathy?
I don't know what it is, but I'm sick of it

Look into my nephews eyes, i see myself back when i didn't care about nothing I'd rather be alone for now. figure out how to bring myself back down on the ground, on the ground

'Cause now I'm flying higher than i ever could imagine And i was supposed to be scared of heights, like what happened?

I guess we change, some for the best, some for the worse

I'm stuck somewhere between em, it hurts

Let me tell you, yeah

It's dark at night, i miss the sunlight

Miss saying things like, thanks I'm alright when you ask me, how I'm feeling well I'm happy, when I'm dreaming

It's a whole 'other world in my head when i close my eyes in my bed

'Couse I make up places and people

Replace myself if i need to Three little birds on my doorstep

I see what he means when i go there so peaceful so quiet

Alone, but self reliant

I came to the point where i put the mic down, and said

I'm done

And with a life like this,

you might just feel, like putting steel on your tongue

Look into my nephews eyes, i see myself

'Cause now I'm flying higher than i ever could imagine
And i was supposed to be scared of heights, like what happened?

I'm stuck somewhere between em, it hurts

They gotta kill me to make us meet again

'cause i ain't never giving up, i ain't leaving yet

It's not for me no more, it's for all of us see you when i see you, i love you all

'Cause now I'm flying higher than i ever could imagine
And i was supposed to be scared of heights, like what happened?

I'm stuck somewhere between em, it hurts
