She collects little worlds in the palm of her hand
What she sees on the outside she don't understand
All the pain and the anger are breaking her heart
The radiance and innocence always sets her apart
It's just how we are made
We see things the same, but just a different shade
Don't you change a thing, little girl, in your snow globe world
Now it's snowing in summer with no end in sight
Mother Nature is trying, but she's losing her fight
Oceans rising around us and we're losing the trees
It's time for us to take account before everything leaves
It's just how we are made
We see things the same, but just a different shade
Don't you change a thing, little girl, in your snow globe world
Snow globe world, snow globe world
So shake it up, shake it around
Wake it up, make it go round and round
And round, it's your playground
We collect all the world with the palms of our hands
Looking in from the outside, I don't understand
If we all are the same, how we got to this place
Because we are all just humans running in the human race
It's just how we are made
We see things the same, but just a different shade
Don't you change a thing, my little girl, in your snow globe world
Snow globe world, snow globe world
