

Sixpence None The Richer "Melting Alone"

Visit "Melting Alone" on MotoLyrics.com

Tonight the lamplight swirls and glistens
Melting itself upon my face
I'm hanging my silhouette near the shoreline
I'm swimming underneath in the noontime

Will I ever know what's wrong with me?
Will I ever see your hand again in mine...

Tonight the rain is pelting rooftops

There is no fire to melt the cold
I'm straining to hear a human whisper
And I'm painting images on the soft stone

Now I'm drinking alone
Amidst these figures of stone
I'll raise the glass once again
Then lay my head on the pillow

Visit Sixpence None The Richer page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.