(Gary Moore)

Nothing to lie in your pockets,
Don't give it a thought till later on.
Like a bulb without a socket,
No one will bother to turn you on.

But who wants to know,
Who wants to know?
No one wants to know.
Who wants to know,
Who wants to know?
No one wants to know.

You've got no money to buy cheap wine.
Well, haven't you had enough for once?
Like a summer without sunshine,
It's been rain, just rain for months.

But who wants to know,
Who wants to know?
No one wants to know.
Who wants to know,
Who wants to know?
No one wants to know.

Nothing to lie in your pockets,
Don't give it a thought till later on.
Like a bulb without a socket,
No one will bother to turn you on.

But who wants to know,
Who wants to know?
No one wants to know.
Who wants to know,
Who wants to know?
No one wants to know.
