If it were within,
within our power
beyond the reach
of slavish pride,
to no-longer
harbour grievances
behind the mask's opportunists facade,

we could welcome responsibility like a long lost friend and re-establish laughter in the doll's house once again.

For time has imprisoned us in the order of our years in the discipline of our ways and in the passing of momentary stillness

You can see our chaos in motion our chaos in motion We can view our chaos in motion view our chaos in motion... well-versed in the subtle art of slavery.
