Test this gold for it's worth is the same as testing me
And the fire burns easily today

The net is the good that's left after the metal is refined As I melt, look at what I've got and Separate it all from what I need

I'll take anything, anything genuine.
Looking up from where I went I could take whatever I get
I'll take anything, anything genuine

More interesting is my faith than the fear of what I'll miss
And those things are temporary anyway

Still on this side getting fit for a faith that's been tried And I smile more believably while getting just enough to know I need

I'll take anything, anything genuine
Looking up from where I went, I could take whatever I
Falling from Your hands or falling from Your lips As long as it's from You, I know that I can take it, I can take it

And I'll rejoice.
