Well I don't have a symphony
But I'll lick your heart with my fingers
You get caught in the details
You get caught in the big picture
I am sleeping on your doorstep
I am waiting with you smiling overhead

Well I tried to paint you yellow
With some leaves down in the park
With some songs your mother sang
When the love was unconditional
And maybe that's the problem
That I can't promise anything

A girl in a window in soho
I'm a beggar underneath that you won't know
A princess in a window in soho
But the prince comes to the window and it's closed

A halo in a window in soho
When the sinner came knocking you sent him home
I used to think all it would take was some time
But now I know you're a waste of my time

Stop your bleeding now
You said no leaving

I can break you apart with my hands
I can build you back into something else
Make your face into a cake, honey yes I can

A girl in a window in soho
I'm a beggar underneath that you won't know
A princess in a window in soho
But the prince comes to the window and it's closed
A halo in a window in soho
When the sinner came knocking you sent him home
I used to think all it would take was some time
But now I know you're a waste of my time

Stop your bleeding now
You said no leaving
