I'd rather kiss the walls,
Than have to say I'm sorry,
Even when I'm right, I'm wrong.
Don't deny,
You left while I was sleeping,
You put out my lively creeping,
Oh, I can't sleep at all.

You don't know what it means
To sacrifice.
Baby, you just want to believe,
That you're always right.

So I'm leaving,
Must have been dreaming,
If I thought you believed in me at all,
But you don't even sing my songs,
You just hum along,
You can't wait 'til they are done.
Tell me how can I love someone,
When I'd rather kiss the wall?

You kiss me in the sky,
To keep my arms around you,
And let my love surround you,
But you kept your love aside.

You bled me dry,
Took all the love left in me,
Took all your love to give me,
And you wrapped it up in lies.

Baby, you don't know what it means
To sacrifice.
Baby, you just want to believe
That you're always right.

So I'm leaving,
Must have been dreaming
If I thought you believed in me at all,
But you don't even sing my songs,

You just hum along,
You can't wait 'til they are done.
Tell me how can I love someone,
When I'd rather kiss the wall?

When I'm wrong, you're right,
But I'll be leaving you tonight.
I'm so right, and you're so wrong,
You can be right here and all alone.

'Cause I'm leaving,
Must have been dreaming
If I thought you believed in me at all,
But you don't even sing my songs,
You just hum along,
You can't wait 'til they are done,

So I'm leaving,
Must have been dreaming
If I thought you believed in me at all,
Oh, you don't even sing my songs,
You just hum along,
You can't wait 'til they are done,
Oh no, tell me how can I love someone,
When I'd rather kiss the wall?
