All's quiet except for the screaming
Yes the place I come and I find
No names but I remember the faces
I'm the one you blame
No time to think about what it means
I'm the one you blame
All rise up time to bring the flesh alive
While the taste remains on my mind
No names but I remember the faces
I'm the one you blame
No time to think about what it means
I'm the one you blame
The decision has been made as I lie on the table
No need to be reminded of the reflections I make
I know what I can't see still exists
And I know what I can see never was Doesn't make it any easier
I just get used to it
All screaming no used in being silent
Yes the place I come and I find
No names but I remember the faces
I'm the one you blame
No time to think about what it means
I'm the one you blame
