"Black Star"

I'm looking through the eye of the sun
And another life has just begun
For those who really want to get burned
Well, here's a looking at you

I'm gazing through a hole in the sky
And I'm learning how to raise a child
Who's always gonna be by your side
Whatever you may do

With a meaning and a hope to fade away
From the ones who think they've got nothing left to say Well, if you think you've grown colder when you open up inside
Leave a black star on your shoulder and you will be out of sight

I'm looking through the eye of the sun
And another view is on the run
If you didn't get what you deserved
Well, here's a looking at you

I'm shooting through the eye of a scar
Can never tell how near or how far
But I'll find out who you really are While you're out of the blue

When the sound you make only seem to be in your way
For a world that's going much faster than today
But, if you think you've grown colder when you open up inside
Leave a black star on your shoulder and you will be out
of sight

With a meaning and a hope to fade away
From the ones who think their lives been thrown away
Well, if you think you've grown older when you open up
Leave a black star on your shoulder and you will be next in line

'Cause I'm looking through the eye of the sun
And another life has just begun
And if you're really waiting for turns
Well, here's a looking at you
