I woke up from my sleep to the sound of that voice
From the words that I heard I had no choice
They told me that I had to turn around My assurance slowly faded down and I wondered

Will I ever make it home, will I ever leave the ground Leave this place so far behind ,till there is no turning back,
Will i ever make it home, get to where I wanna be, find the ones who wait for me ..to the place were i belong..
Will I ever make it home
The plans that I had were quickly destroyed
The problem was one I couldn't avoid They welcomed me to stay overnight I'm too tired to complain so I just might

Will I ever make it home, to the place I recognize Far from here and where I've been, and all the things that I've been shown Will I ever make it home, can they keep me here for good
Where I hardly know a soul, and my fear keeps going on
Will I ever make it home

My weariness keeps growing inside
My patience is starting to subside
And I hope I'll be there soon
It can't be long, or I'll fall through

I woke up from my sleep to the sound of that voice
From the words that I heard I had no choice
They told me that I had to turn around
My assurance slowly faded down

Will I ever make it home, will I ever leave the ground
Leave this place so far behind, till there is no turning
Will I ever make it home, get to where I wanna be

Find the ones who wait for me, to the place where I belong

Will I ever make it home
