Make a wish upon a star Dare to tell your dreams to the one who's wrapped up in your arms
And I want to know who we are Sell your soul so simply, would you sell your soul to change the world?
And I want to tell her everything What oceans mean to me
What things I fear to see.
And she looks up into my eyes
But I lost her in the moment as a shooting star goes flying by...

So we look out at the moon Wandering fish is not my own
I count the stars up in the sky
And she just watches them die.
Tattoo my love upon your heart Trace it with your finger everytime the memories fall apart
Tonight would'nt be so very hard To say you're not afraid, even though it means you really are

And she won't tell me anything
No stories does she bring No sound is happening
Replace my vacant home up in the sky
For no fish swims alone and falling stars can only burn and die

So we look out at the moon, wandering fish is not my own
I count the stars up in the sky, and she just watches them die.

Tattooed her love upon my heart Stung me with kisses, I'm afraid to let it fall apart And I want to wash her wings in kisses of smoke and sing
But I can't remember how it goes

The story or the song I used to know
To hear what we want Excuses and denial
No cut heals slower
There is evil in this presence...
