Your smile is gently freezing
Snow throws it away
Your the laughter in my silence
The crow that keeps me awake

Green towel less soft-spoken
Thoughts you never knew
Your lies and empty promises
Blew them all on hue

[Chorus:]
How does it feel?
How is it that I can't feel
Coz I, I need to know

Coz I
I know I can never be enough
To replace your whatever
And I, I think it's shiny and blue

Like an instant see-through
Coz I know I can never be enough
To replace your whatever
Now everything is silent
And everything is still without you near

Everything about you
The world was something new
And I was there in the open
Well, just to be with you

But every time I see the shelter
And every time I walk away
Your the laughter in my silence
The cold that feeds my day

[Chorus]
How does it feel?
How is it that I can't feel
Coz I, I need to know

Coz I

I know I can never be enough
To replace your whatever
And I, I think it's shiny and blue

Like an instant see-through
Coz I know I can never be enough
To replace your whatever
Now everything is silent
And everything is still without you near

And every time I see you passing by
I'll just stand here waiting for you
And I will talk to myself what a lazy Sunday afternoon

And I'll say that prayer for you
Will be a little bit kind
Enough for me
While I try to be
So perfect
You'll see it
Nothing can compare to you
Whatever lies out there

There's no one here...
